Routledge
Baltic States Library
2018

Welcome

The Baltic States are going to be the Market Focus of the London Book Fair 2018.

The three Baltic countries, and namely Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania, are marking this year a century since their independence.

As Jacks Thomas, Director of The London Book Fair, said:

“Located at the crossroads between Europe and Russia, the Baltic Countries – Estonia, Latvia, and Lithuania – enjoy a rich and cosmopolitan literary history, complementing a fascinating contemporary cultural landscape. 2018 will be a year of celebration for these three countries as they celebrate a centenary of independence, and our Market Focus programme will be part of a wider cultural showcase. We are delighted to be working once again with our partners at the British Council and the Publishers Association, to deliver cultural and professional programmes showcasing the opportunities that the Baltic countries offer.”

And thus welcome to our newly-created Routledge Baltic States Library 2018 Catalogue where we proudly present a selection of relevant titles from Routledge/Taylor and Francis, one of the world’s leading English language publisher in Baltic Studies.

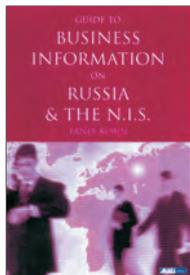

We hope you will find something of your academic or professional interest therein.

Mapping the Rural Problem in the Baltic Countryside

Transition Processes in the Rural Areas of Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania

Edited by Ilkka Alanen

The agricultural privatization strategy adopted in Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania was based on the premise that family farms are the most effective alternative to socialist large-scale agriculture. This book provides a critical and comparative analysis of the implementation of this policy, and in particular the strategy promoted by the World Bank.

An Unproclaimed Empire: The Grand Duchy of Lithuania

From the Viewpoint of Comparative Historical Sociology of Empires

Zenonas Norkus, Vilnius University, Lithuania

Series: Routledge Research in Early Modern History

An Unproclaimed Empire the Grand Duchy of Lithuania is an interdisciplinary study of the Grand Duchy of Lithuania (GDL) this study is historical in subject but social scientific in approach. It is the first study, in the historical scholarship on the GDL, to apply the comparative and social scientific approach. This book applies social scientific theories from comparative empire studies involving historians, sociologists, political scientists, anthropologists and scholars in the theory of international relations to transcend differences in national viewpoints, to raise new questions and to provide new answers to contested issues in the research on the history of the GDL.

Bandits, Gangsters and the Mafia

Russia, the Baltic States and the CIS since 1991

Martin McCauley

During the 1990s, the "roving bandits", big business or the oligarchs, stole Russia. They gained influence over President Yeltsin and his government, and gradually shaped policy in their own interests. In this first comprehensive account to explain why Russia took the course it did, Martin McCauley examines the period through the prism of government, including Yeltsin's shadow government, and looks at the military, police, security and intelligence services. Relations between Moscow and the regions, industry, agriculture, social policy and foreign policy are also explored.

Crusade and Conversion on the Baltic Frontier 1150–1500

Edited by Alan V. Murray

This volume represents a major contribution to the history of the Northern Crusades and the Christianization of the Baltic lands in the Middle Ages, from the beginnings of the Catholic mission to the time of the Reformation. The subjects treated range from discussions of the ideology and practice of crusade and conversion, through studies of the motivation of the crusading countries (Denmark, Sweden and Germany) and the effects of the crusades on the countries of the eastern Baltic coast (Finland, Estonia, Livonia, Prussia and Lithuania), to analyses of the literature and historiography of the crusade.

Crusading and Chronicle Writing on the Medieval Baltic Frontier

A Companion to the Chronicle of Henry of Livonia

Marek Tamm and Linda Kaljundi

The Chronicle of Henry of Livonia, written by a missionary priest in the early thirteenth century to record the history of the crusades to Livonia and Estonia around 1186-1227, offers one of the most vivid examples of the early thirteenth century crusading ideology in practice. Step by step, it has become one of the most widely read and acknowledged frontier crusading and missionary chronicles. Henry's chronicle offers many opportunities to test and broaden the new approaches and key concepts brought along by recent developments in medieval studies, including the new pluralist definition of crusading and the relationship between the peripheries and core areas of Europe.

From the North Sea to the Baltic

Essays in Commercial, Monetary and Agrarian History, 1500–1800

Michael North

Series: Variorum Collected Studies

The Baltic in the early modern period has been called a 'Nordic Mediterranean'. In the studies collected here, Professor North is concerned to examine the ways in which this Baltic region became integrated into the international division of labour and the emerging world economy. The volume opens with a new introductory essay, and the first section then focuses on commodities exported to Western Europe - grain, timber, flax, hemp and other raw materials. The following studies examine how this ever growing bulk trade stimulated a flow of money and payments in the opposite direction, and led to the formation of the manorial economy and second serfdom in the grain-producing countries of the Baltic hinterlands.

Northern Europe in the Early Modern Period

The Baltic World 1492-1772

D.G. Kirby

This is the first in a sequence of books which explores the history of The Baltic World and Northern Europe. In this period, Sweden was a major European power, occupying a central position in international politics. Her rise and decline, and the passing of regional hegemony to the new powers of Russia and Prussia, are central features in the book. Dr Kirby describes the evolving social and political systems of the principal Baltic states of the time, he gives the key events and processes in European history a new interest and freshness by showing them from the unfamiliar perspective of the northern world.

The Baltic Nations and Europe

Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania in the Twentieth Century

John Hiden and Patrick Salmon

Of all the Soviet Union's subject nationalities, the three Baltic republics, Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania, were the most determined and best organised in seizing the opportunities created by glasnost and perestroika to win freedom from Moscow's grip. At the time of first publication, in 1991, the final section of the book was speculative. Now for this revised edition, the authors have provided a new final chapter which brings the story up to date -- and the three republics to political independence again.

The Baltic States and the End of the Soviet Empire

Kristian Gerner and Stefan Hedlund

Series: Routledge Library Editions: World Empires

First published in 1993. The topic of this book is the implosion of the Soviet empire. It tells the parallel stories of how the three Baltic republics of Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania struggled successfully to gain their freedom, and how the policies pursued by Mikhail Gorbachev served to mobilize and politicize Baltic demands. Particular emphasis is placed on unintended consequences that resulted from repeated interventions by Moscow. The authors develop a loose theoretic framework for the examination of this critical struggle.

The Baltic World 1772-1993

Europe's Northern Periphery in an Age of Change

David Kirby

This eagerly-awaited sequel shares the characteristics of its distinguished predecessor -- wide geographical and chronological span; expert mingling of political, social and economic history; and Dr Kirby's ability to keep the separate national threads of his account from tangling as he weaves them into the broad regional picture that is his main concern. Here he tackles the contrasting experiences of Europe's northern periphery -- affluence and democracy in the north, stagnation and authoritarianism in the south -- from the French Revolution to the collapse of the USSR and beyond. This is a masterly study of a region that is far from peripheral politically to the post-Soviet world.

The City of the Red Plague

Soviet Rule in a Baltic Town

George Popoff and Robin John

Series: RLE: Early Western Responses to Soviet Russia

This book, originally published in English in 1932, covers the Soviet occupation of Latvia during 1919. The attempt of Moscow to set up a foreign Soviet State, extending to every sphere of public and private life is described in detail, with the aim of showing what the methods were which the soviet leaders used to carry through their system to other countries. The Latvian occupation showed what many people in Western Europe were unaware of at the time: namely that the main principle behind the Bolshevik system was brutal force.

The Clash of Cultures on the Medieval Baltic Frontier

Edited by Alan V. Murray

The conversion of the lands on the southern and eastern shores of the Baltic Sea by Germans, Danes and Swedes in the period from 1150 to 1400 represented the last great struggle between Christianity and paganism on the European continent, but for the indigenous peoples of Finland, Livonia, Prussia, Lithuania and Pomerania, it was also a period of wider cultural conflict and transformation. Along with the Christian faith came a new and foreign culture: the German and Scandinavian languages of the crusaders and the Latin of their priests, new names for places, superior military technology, and churches and fortifications built of stone. For newly baptized populations, the acceptance of Christianity encompassed major changes in the organization and practice of political, religious and social life, entailing the acceptance of government by alien elites, of new cultic practices, and of new obligations such as taxes, tithes and military service in the armies of the Christian rulers.

The Making and Breaking of Soviet Lithuania

Memory and Modernity in the Wake of War

Violeta Davoliūtė, Conflict and Culture Research Centre, Lithuania

Series: BASEES/Routledge Series on Russian and East European Studies

Lithuania suffered in the course of the twentieth century successive horrific invasions, significant border changes and large scale population displacements. As a consequence of these traumatic events, different protagonists constructed radically different historical narratives, which have in turn been used by ruling regimes and oppositions, to reinforce their own identity. This book discusses these various constructed historical narratives and identities, focusing especially on the construction, and dismantling, of "Soviet Lithuania". Because Lithuania was fought over so much, it exemplifies the degree to which the identity of both regimes and oppositions is a mental construct.

The North-Eastern Frontiers of Medieval Europe

The Expansion of Latin Christendom in the Baltic Lands

Edited by Alan V. Murray

Series: The Expansion of Latin Europe, 1000-1500

By the mid-twelfth century the lands on the eastern coast of the Baltic Sea, from Finland to the frontiers of Poland, were Catholic Europe's final frontier: a vast, undeveloped expanse of lowlands, forest and waters, inhabited by peoples belonging to the Finnic and Baltic language groups. In the course of the following three centuries, Finland, Estonia, Livonia and Prussia were incorporated into the Latin world through processes of conquest, Christianisation and settlement, and brought under the rule of Western monarchies and ecclesiastical institutions. Lithuania was left as the last pagan polity in Europe, yet able to accept Christianity on its own terms in 1386. The Western conquest of the Baltic lands advanced the frontier of Latin Christendom to that of the Russian Orthodox world, and had profound and long lasting effects on the institutions, society and culture of the region lasting into modern times.

Warfare, Loyalty, and Rebellion

The Grand Duchy of Lithuania and the Great Northern War, 1709–1717

Mindaugas Šapoka

This book examines the politics of the Grand Duchy of Lithuania during the crucial period between the Russian tsar Peter the Great's victory over Sweden at the battle of Poltava and the 1717 Silent Sejm, the Polish-Lithuanian parliament's session which is traditionally seen as responsible for opening the way to Russian domination of Polish-Lithuanian politics. It not only challenges the accepted view of the passivity of the Lithuanian gentry and their subservience to the Russians, but also presents a clear view of how the Lithuanian economy and political system were functioning in 1710–1717, factors which have never been studied in depth in any language.

Germany and the Baltic Problem After the Cold War

The Development of a New Ostpolitik, 1989-2000

Kristina Spohr Readman

The root question this book addresses is how the new Germany will use its re-found status as a great power. Does Germany - as in the past - aim to dominate Europe? Or has it renounced its imperial ambitions following the trauma of division during the Cold War?

The Rise and Fall of the Soviet Navy in the Baltic 1921-1941

Gunnar Åselius

Series: Cass Series: Naval Policy and History

This book, based on extensive work in Russian archives, investigates how strategy, organisational rivalry and cultural factors came to shape naval developments in the Soviet Union, up to the invasion of 1941. Focussing on the Baltic Fleet, the author shows how the perceived balance of power in northern Europe came to have a major influence on Soviet naval policy during the 1920s and 1930s.

Crisis Response and Post Crisis Results in the Nordic and Baltic Countries

Successes, Failures, Lessons Learned and Future Challenges.

Hilmar Hilmarsson

The book will discuss the crisis response and post crisis results in the Nordic and Baltic countries in terms of both economic performance (e.g. GDP and unemployment) and social progress (e.g. risk of poverty, social exclusion, income distribution). The book will also analyze and assess how the Nordic-Baltic financial linkages affected crisis response in the Nordic and the Baltic States in 2008.

The book will add to the literature on the EU, regional integration generally and on small states. It will seek to delve into the benefits and disadvantages of economic integration including banking linkages, trade and investment flows.

Food Culture and Politics in the Baltic States

Edited by Diana Mincyte, Department of Social Science, New York City College of New York, City University of New York and Ulrike Plath, School of Humanities, Tallinn University, Estonia

In popular and scholarly writings, the Baltic diet is viewed as rustic and inferior, due to an intellectual tradition that focuses on political and cultural centers as sources of progress. Now, academic thought argues that in order to fully grasp ongoing cultural and political changes, we need to shift the focus from capital cities to everyday life in borderland regions that are primary arenas where such transformations unfold. This volume explores culinary practices across the Baltic states, and offers a new vantage point for understanding the entanglement between nature and culture in modern Europe. This book was originally published as a special issue of the Journal of Baltic Studies.

Identity and Foreign Policy

Baltic-Russian Relations and European Integration

Piret Ehin and Eiki Berg

Baltic-Russian relations have been complicated and tense since the collapse of the USSR and the restoration of Estonian, Latvian and Lithuanian independence. Although Baltic accession to the European Union (EU) has created a new international context for interstate relations in the region, enlargement did not bring about the much hoped for improvement in Baltic-Russian relations. This case-study-rich volume examines links between identity, memory politics and foreign policy. It analyzes and explains developments in Baltic-Russian relations after both NATO and EU enlargement, focusing on the incompatibility of Baltic and Russian post-Soviet national identity constructions and the manifestations of this underlying antagonism in bilateral relations and on the broader European and international arena. Built on the constructivist perspective in international relations, this volume provides a coherent and illuminating account of the dynamics of Baltic-Russian relations.

Judicial Application of European Union Law in post-Communist Countries

The Cases of Estonia and Latvia

Tatjana Evas

This book discusses how the plurality of legal norms operating in the European Union can be balanced to produce a functioning, sustainable and legitimate legal system. Presenting a conceptual framework for assessing and comparing transformations of national judicial systems in the context of EU membership, the book contributes to the EU legal theoretical debate on the relationship between 'authority' and 'coherence'. The author develops an original analytical framework of coherence to assess the application of EU law by national courts and uses interdisciplinary scientific methods and research design that combine legal doctrinal and social science methodology to the study of 'classical' legal questions. Providing an extensive database of 2004-2009 national judgments of national courts in Latvia and Estonia, the book offers an extensive comparative review of the jurisprudence of constitutional and supreme courts.

Models of Democracy in Nordic and Baltic Europe

Political Institutions and Discourse

Edited by Nicholas Aylott

Series: The Nordic Experience

This book explores the ways in which representative democracy works in two neighbouring collections of European states: the Nordic (Denmark, Finland, Iceland, Norway and Sweden) and the Baltic (Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania). The central, guiding questions are: how does political representation work in countries that have a lot in common, but also a few significant contextual dissimilarities; and what, if any, relationships between the respective styles of democracy can be identified? Using a variety of theories, perspectives and methods, the empirical studies that populate the book seek to offer reflections on these questions.

Nation-Building in the Baltic States

Transforming Governance, Social Welfare, and Security in Northern Europe

Gundar J. King, Pacific Lutheran University, Tacoma, Washington, USA and David E. McNabb, Pacific Lutheran University, Tacoma, Washington, USA

This book explores the characteristics of the Baltic states as positioned in the northeast corridor in terms of military strife and polity development such as democratization. It then details governments' efforts to abet transparency and trust by way of developing new public and private institutions for advancements like innovation and private wealth creation. The book concludes with a realistic picture of future hurdles for this region, looking at lingering challenges and regional instabilities, policy mistakes not to be made again, and recommendations for national planning and resource management.

Post-Cold War Identity Politics

Northern and Baltic Experiences

Edited by Marko Lehti, University of Turku, Finland and David J. Smith, University of Glasgow, UK

Series: Routledge Studies in Nationalism and Ethnicity

During the past decade northern Europe has started to assume an identity of its own. Categories of East and West have become blurred, challenging as well the idea of what it means to be Nordic. Post-Cold War Identity Politics maps this process in Scandinavia. Looking at projects designed to help regional development in the Nordic countries, it assesses whether a new way of defining 'Northern-ness' is emerging.

Taming Nationalism? Political Community Building in the Post-Soviet Baltic States

Dovile Budryte

Series: Post-Soviet Politics

Revisiting the process of political community building in Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania, this book analyzes the roles that international actors have played in these processes and assesses the unintended consequences of this involvement. The study differs from other works on ethnic minorities and nationalism in the former Soviet Union by exploring the use of minority rights discourse and the salience of historical memory. Case studies examine the transformation of nationalism in Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania - all former Soviet republics - which have experienced Soviet nationalities policy first-hand. Primarily intended for an academic audience and practitioners interested in promoting tolerance in multi-ethnic societies, the book's historical narrative will also appeal to readers with a general interest in the former Soviet Union and post-Communism.

The Baltic Sea Region: Conflict Or Cooperation?

Region-making, Security, Disarmament And Conversion

Christian Wellmann

International relations in Europe are under transition. What will be the outcome? Enhanced integration, new fragmentation, a centre-periphery structure, or multiple overlapping regionalization? A stable renaissance or a soon fade out of the nation-state? Will conflict or cooperation prevail? In this book 22 scholars from all Baltic Sea littoral states, Norway and the United States track these questions by focussing them to the Baltic Sea Region.

Identity, Discourse and Power in the Post-Communist Transition of Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania

Richard Mole, University College London, UK

Series: BASEES/Routledge Series on Russian and East European Studies

This book provides an informative and interesting overview of developments in Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania, as they made the transition from Soviet domination to membership of the EU. It focuses in particular on the concepts of identity, sovereignty and power in the domestic and international politics of the Baltic states.

Agnia Grigas

Series: Post-Soviet Politics

Since the 1990s, Baltic-Russian relations have been amongst the most contentious on the European continent. Energy security concerns, historical legacies, and the status of Russian minorities have all proved key flash points. Baltic-Russian relations have been described as a 'litmus test' of Russia's willingness to leave behind its imperialist ambitions; simultaneously the policies of Tallinn, Riga or Vilnius towards Russia can have a direct impact on EU-Russian and NATO-Russian relations. The Baltic states share similar histories and resources, and face the same geopolitical challenges. All are dependent on Russia for energy yet, as this fascinating study reveals, they have pursued very different foreign policies towards their powerful neighbour. In The Politics of Energy and Memory between the Baltic States and Russia Agnia Grigas provides an unprecedented analysis of contemporary Baltic-Russian relations and identifies the causal factors that drive the foreign policies of the Baltics.

Islam in the Nordic and Baltic Countries

Edited by Göran Larsson, University of Gothenburg, Sweden

Series: Routledge Islamic Studies Series

Although Muslims are now an important presence in Europe, little is known about the Muslim communities that exist in the Nordic and Baltic regions. This is the first comprehensive and detailed study of the history, context and development of Islamic institutions and Muslim groups in Northern Europe.

Religious Diversity in Post-Soviet Society

Ethnographies of Catholic Hegemony and the New Pluralism in Lithuania

Milda Ališauskiene and Ingo W. Schröder

Since the end of state repression against religion, two major processes have taken place in the formerly socialist countries: historically dominant churches strive to reassert their position in society, while new religious groups and ideas from various parts of the world are proliferating. This generates pluralism of religious communities and individual religious attitudes. Religious Diversity in Post-Soviet Society presents the first collection of ethnographies of this new religious diversity for Lithuania, a country that has a long history of a dominant Catholic Church. The authors reveal how Catholicism has become increasingly diversified and other religions (Charismatic Protestantism, Baltic Paganism, Eastern religions and other alternative spiritualities) are claiming their space in the religious field.

The Testimony of Lives

Narrative and memory in post-Soviet Latvia

Vieda Skultans

Based on more than 100 interviews carried out in the wake of Latvian independence, it gives voice to stories of dispossession and exile and of ambiguous returns. At the same time it unpicks the process of memory itself, showing how personal memory is shaped by the traditional narratives of national history and culture.
